DR. GEORGE WHITFIELD KEMPER, JR.

1814 --- 1902

Physician, Farmer, and Industrialist

Married Mary Angeline Brown, daughter of Bezaleel and Elizabeth Michie Brown of Albemarle County, in 1838. She died in 1855, and in 1858, he married Margaret Catharine Strayer, daughter of Jacob and Adelaide Coffman Strayer.

Dr. Kemper not only practiced medicine, but was engaged in farming. He also operated a woolen mill, a foundry, and a flour mill, all of which were destroyed by Union troops during the Battle of Port Republic in 1862.

"MADISON HALL"

Located at the southern edge of Port Republic, Virginia, overlooking the Shenandoah River, "Madison Hall" was originally owned by John Madison, first Clerk of Augusta County, and was the boyhood home of his son, James Madison, first Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Virginia, and for many years, President of the College of William and Mary.

The original house, which was torn down in 1915, was a frame structure. The interior was beautifully constructed with its delicately carved mantels and woodwork. Of particular note were the "powder rooms," one on each side of the mantel in the living room. These were, no doubt, put to good use in the days when powdered wigs were the fashion.

"Madison Hall" was purchased by Dr. George Whitfield Kemper, Sr., in 1837. During the Battles of Port Republic and Cross Keys in June 1862, General Stonewall Jackson had his headquarters there.

Prior to the death of Dr. George Whitfield Kemper, Sr., in 1872, his son, Dr. George Whitfield Kemper, Jr., had moved to "Madison Hall" with his family. He resided there until his death in 1902, at which time "Madison Hall" became the property of his wife, Margaret Strayer Kemper, who continued to live there with her son, Dr. Albert Strayer Kemper, and his family until 1908 when they moved to "Bogota." Three generations of Dr. Kempers and four consecutive generations of the family lived at "Madison Hall."

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Located in the southeast wing of the Capitol complex, the House of Representatives building is a large, multi-story structure. It is surrounded by trees and a low wall in the foreground. The building is a prominent feature of the Capitol complex.

"BOGOTA"

"Bogota," situated on the west side of the Shenandoah River, at Lynnwood, Virginia, was originally owned by Gabriel Jones, the king's attorney. The first house on the "Bogota" estate was built by him in 1756 on a knoll close to the river. This house was a colonial frame structure. It was here that George Washington visited Gabriel Jones in 1784.

Upon the death of Gabriel Jones his estate passed into the hands of his wife, Margaret Strother Jones. She died in 1822, and in 1831 "Bogota" was transferred by her grandson, Jacquelin B. Harvie, to Jacob Strayer of New Market. Some time after this, Jacob Strayer started building the brick mansion now standing on the second knoll from the river. This house was completed in 1847.

Jacob Strayer died in 1863, and in the settlement of his estate, "Bogota" mansion with 430 acres of the land passed into the hands of his four maiden daughters. Upon the death of the last of these "Bogota" became the property of another daughter, Margaret Catharine Strayer, second wife of Dr. George Whitfield Kemper, Jr. In November 1908, she moved there from "Madison Hall" with her son, Dr. Albert Strayer Kemper, and his family. In 1909, upon the death of his mother, Dr. Albert Strayer Kemper became the owner of "Bogota." He lived there until his death in 1941.

The estate still remains in the family, making five consecutive generations to live in "Bogota" mansion.

The house is a two-story structure with a prominent front porch supported by columns. The house is surrounded by trees and foliage. The porch has a gabled roof and is accessible by a set of steps. The house appears to be made of brick or stone. The overall style is reminiscent of early 20th-century architecture.

"Miss Lizzie" as she was affectionately known to her friends, and "Nanna" as she was called by her grandchildren, was a fine, Christian character, whose gentle and friendly disposition made her beloved by all who knew her. She was the ideal example of womanhood, the perfect daughter, wife, and mother. Those who had the privilege of knowing and being intimately associated with her through the years, will always be grateful for her influence and inspiration.

Mrs. Kemper made "Bogota" a mecca for all of her family and friends during the forty years she lived there, and even the most casual acquaintance could not help but feel the sincerity of her welcome and leave with the uplifted feeling of having been in the presence of a lovely lady.
